

that you have. You also promised me that you would not be back in this Court again. I hope that that turns out to be correct.

[3] I am today prepared to give you a chance. The notes of this sentencing will be kept on file and if you are foolish enough ever to come back again you can rest assured that you will not get a second chance. Next time you will be in prison.

[4] Today, however, I have decided that you will receive a sentence of community service and what will happen is this. There will be an overall period of 18 months probation and for the first 12 months of that you will be on community service. So that will take 12 months and during all of that time, and for another 6 months after you finish community service, you will be on probation and the terms of that probation will be all matters that you are directed by the Probation Service to do but, in particular, there will be a curfew. So between the hours of 7 in the evening and 7 in the morning you cannot go out unless you are with your sister or her husband. If they go out you have to be with them, otherwise you have to stay at home. And during this period of 18 months you have to continue to live with your sister.

[5] In addition you have to pay Court costs of $30.

A handwritten signature in black ink, consisting of a large, sweeping loop that ends in a small flourish.

Tom Weston
Chief Justice